INS Tabar Arrived At St Petersburg To Participate In Russian Navy Day Celebrations.

The tradition to hold the Main Naval Parade in St Petersburg is "to honour glorious victories of the Navy that made a substantial contribution to defending the Fatherland" emerged in 2017.

About INS Tabar:

INS Tabar (F44) called as "battle axe" is the third of the Talwar-class frigate of the Indian Navy.

The frigate was commissioned on 19 April 2004 in Kaliningrad, Russia with Captain (later Vice Admiral) Biswajit Dasgupta.

INS Tabar reached her home-port of Mumbai on 31 July 2004. Along with her sister ships INS Talwar ("sword" in Sanskrit) and INS Trishul ("trident" in Sanskrit).

INS Tabar is assigned to Indian Navy's Western Naval Command, head-quartered in Mumbai.

INS Tabar, is a stealth frigate built for the Indian Navy in Russia.

Recent activity of INS TABAR

In recent times, the ship has visited various ports of the Persian Gulf on a goodwill mission.

The ship also participated in the International Fleet Review at Visakhapatnam.

It recently visited Port Louis to participate in the Mauritius National Day celebrations.

INS TABAR recently visited Hamburg, Germany on 17 July 24.

The developments assumes significance as a follow up of Indian prime ministers recent visit to Russia to participate in the Indo-Russia annual Bilateral summit.

The Talwar-class frigates:

The Talwar-class frigates are a series of stealthy guided-missile frigates designed for the Indian Navy.

These warships combine stealth features with advanced weaponry and sensors, offering a blend of firepower, survivability, and versatility.

The Talwar-class frigates are equipped to perform a variety of roles, including anti-submarine warfare, anti-surface warfare, and air defense.

INS Tripur is the latest addition to the Indian Navy's fleet of Talwar-class frigates.
