Indravati River – 1

- Indravati River is a major left-bank tributary of the Godavari River in central India.
- The river originates at about 914 m elevation in Mardiguda village of Thuamul Rampur Block, Kalahandi district, Odisha, on the western slopes of the Eastern Ghats.
- The total length of the Indravati River is approximately 535.80 km, draining a basin of about 40,625–41,665 sq km.
- The river initially flows west through Kalahandi district and Nabarangapur district before entering Chhattisgarh.
- It forms a boundary for about 9.5 km between Odisha and Chhattisgarh before
- After traversing nearly 233 km in Chhattisgarh, the river turns south and later south-west.
- The river demarcates parts of the border between Chhattisgarh and Maharashtra for roughly 129 km.
- The Indravati merges with the Godavari River near Bhadrakali village in Bijapur district at the tri-junction of Maharashtra, Chhattisgarh, and Telangana.
- The basin contributes nearly 7,435 sq km catchment within Odisha state alone.
- Indravati is often described as the “oxygen” of Bastar district due to its dense forest ecosystem and biodiversity richness.
