The festival was started to showcase works of Indian theatre practitioners, and it has grown over the years to attract international performers as well.

National School of Drama is India's premier theatre training institute funded by Government of India.

Originally the festival was national in scope, but has gradually become an international one.

The 2009 Festival featured 63 productions, out of which 51 were from India and 12 were overseas plays, over a span of 12 days. Today it is acknowledged as the largest theatre festival of Asia, dedicated solely to theatre.

The festival is generally held each year at venues in and around NSD campus, and also in a one "showcase city", where a "Satellite Festival" of Bharat Rang Mahotsav is held. For example, in 2009, the venue Lucknow saw 18 productions. In 2010 the venue was Bhopal.
